

Beth Ineck

Beth Ineck is an Idaho Native and has lived in the Nampa community since 2002. She spent 14 years working for the City of Nampa to grow a dynamic community. She currently works for the Boise Valley Economic Partnership which is the regional economic development organization supporting business development in Ada and Canyon County. She has been active in the Nampa community for a number of years, serving on the Saint Alphonsus Nampa Community Advisory Board since 2017 and the Canyon County Boys and Girls Club Board of Directors since 2020. Outside of her love for growing the regional economy and building strong communities Beth has two children who attend Columbia High School and has been married for 18 years to Matthew Ineck.

Beth has decided to support the Nampa Auditorium District effort and serve on the Board because she believes that the visitors benefiting from the tremendous community assets should participate in the funding and maintenance of those facilities. The Auditorium district will provide an avenue to fund needed capital improvements at the Nampa Civic Center and Idaho Center. These venues are a great asset bringing important quality of life events to the community but come with a significant cost that should not solely be paid by city of Nampa taxpayers.
